SERVICES AT GRACE CHURCH.

Who the Ushers and Pail-Bearers Were and What People Were There.

Society paid its last respects and took a final look to-day upon the face of the man it had know so well and intimately. But the people who attended the funeral services of Ward McAllister at Grace Church this morning were not exclu-sively the ones he had drawn within the circle of the 400. They were the reprea sprinkling from the "Lower Five."

And while there were in the crush at Grace Church, Broadway and Eleventh street, this morning scores of those who had been the dead leader's friends and intimates, there were plenty to whom Ward McAllister was nothing but a name, and who had come to see in death whom they never had been able to
